STEWARD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE GROWING

New Institution Is Centrally Located, and Student Boost ers Are Active.

Although it is but one year old, Stewand's Business College already is one of the largest schools of its kind in Wash-

This college occupies two floors of the Brentano Buildins, at Twelfth and streets porthwest. This affords a central location and a home for the school in a fire-roof building especially adapted for its purposes. The two floors are fitted with the latest and best school furniture, with new typewriting machines and all provisions for the comfort of pupils, such as electric fans, are

In both day and night classes there are large number of enthusiastic pupils. Many of the States and several foreign countries are represented among this student body. A recent arrival is direct from Panama. Sons of seven Congress-men, and of other officials, are among those enrolled. Students have organized into a club known as the "Roosters." This student eganization looks after the athletic and conial activities at the school. A feeent achievement of the "Roosters" was a firecessful social and dance held on September 1. This event calebrated the first anniversary of the school, and terved to dedicate the fifth floor, just added to the school's floor space.

Almost every department of the Government of the ground the school's floor of the ground the school of the ground th Amost every department of the Government now employes one or more graduates of the school, and other graduates are seen in the leading business offices of the city. The management asserts that the demand is so great fer pupils with business training that many have left school to accept positions before their courses were completed.
